Hoda, Thornton honored for rescue

BY DENA BISNETTE
Two Hancock County Sheriff's Department Deputies have been commended for their roles in the Christmas Eve rescue of a Texas woman kidnapped by her ex-husband.
Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson presented plaques to Nathan "Corky" Hoda and Eddie Thornton at Friday's meeting of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, while a group of their uniformed colleagues applauded.
The rescue occurred Dec. 24, 1987, at about 10:15 a.m. when the two deputies responded to a disturbance call at Todd's, a convenience store on Highway 603 near Waveland.

Sharon Malley, a clerk at the store, had reported screams coming from a dark green van in the parking lot.

Peterson told the story to the supervisors and spectators in the boardroom Friday just prior to the presentation.

He said that inside the van, 38-year-old Eric Allen Demchek of Pittsburg, Pa., had been holding his ex-wife, Linda Barkschat of Houston, Texas, hostage.

Authorities learned later that Barkschat, 27, had been kidnapped by two men in Houston the day before and had been turned over to Demchek, whom she had divorced in 1984.

She had been handcuffed inside the van but had been able to find a key and free herself when her ex-husband stopped for gasoline at Todd's after getting off Interstate-10.

Hoda and Thornton met in a parking lot about a mile away from the store and were preparing to serve papers on another matter when they received the call. Upon arriving at Todd's, they found Demchek and Barkschat struggling over a .22-caliber revolver with a silencer on it, Peterson said.

The two deputies attempted to talk Demchek into dropping the weapon, which he was pointing at his ex-wife's head, but were unsuccessful.

The woman pulled away and Hoda shot Demchek in the shoulder.

Thornton went inside the van to try to subdue Demchek, who switched the gun to his other hand and pointed it at the officers. Hoda fired twice more, killing Demchek.

Peterson said Hoda and Thornton saved Barkschat's life and commended Hoda for saving a fellow officer as well, explaining to the board that Hoda not shot again, Thornton would probably have been killed.

The Mississippi Highway Patrol had investigated the case, according to another procedure used "when an officer from another agency is involved in a shooting."

Demchek had been found to have possessed various types of weapons, some rigged in ways Peterson had called "like a James Bond movie."

On Friday, Peterson also read a letter from Barkschat that talked about how grateful she was for the help the sheriff's department, particularly Hoda and Thornton, had provided. The letter stated that she would like to have a key and free herself when her ex-husband stopped for gasoline at Todd's after getting off Interstate-10.

Peterson said Barkschat's letter had been published in a daily newspaper.

In addition, she has received letters from Barkschat's parents and Demchek's mother who had called Hoda after the shooting to tell him she understood his actions.

Culverts complaints continue

BY DENA BISNETTE
The Hancock County Board of Supervisors is still receiving protests regarding repair of a concrete box culvert at Grand Bayou and Beach Road, despite work on the structure has been in progress for about two weeks.
The box culvert, located near one of the Buccaneer State Park parking bays, is the first of four being repaired under a $412,578 contract between the board and J.H. Moon Construction of Ridgeland.

The board agreed to have the culverts repaired after County Engineer Larry Seal explained that four were deteriorated enough to be dangerous. The project is one of the first actions toward the new board's goal of establishing a comprehensive repair and maintenance program for Beach Road.

Seal reported he had inspected the project Friday morning before arriving at the board meeting, and the bottom of the structure has already been poured and the forms were being set up to pour the sides.

He said the bottom had taken 88 cubic yards of concrete. "His progress on it has been as good as possible," the engineer said. "The contractor has about 15 people working on that project."

Seal added he and the contractor had even been talking about the possibilities of bringing in a third crew so the other two culverts in Beat One, located at Sand Bayou and Clermont Harbor, could be poured simultaneously.

The fourth culvert is located in Beat Three at the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club.

Buccaneer State Park Manager Greg Smith and the board agreed prior to the beginning of the project that detour signs would be set up to reroute park traffic, although Smith had expressed dissatisfaction with the timing of the repairs, which are occurring at the beginning of the park's peak business season.

Also expressing dissatisfaction with the project has been Leonard Rupp, owner of a campground at Clermont Harbor. At a prior meeting, he offered the board his suggestions on what could have been done instead of blocking the road, and said he was concerned that the project would "kill business" for him and the Paddlewheel Restaurant and Motel next door to him.

Security officer arrested, charged in burglary

BY DENA BISNETTE
A security officer has been arrested in the April 2 burglary of Diamondhead Pharmacy in Diamondhead Shopping Center.

According to Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson, Steven N. MacDonald, 36, of 1617 Fourth Ave., Piquette, was arrested Thursday and charged with burglary of a pharmacy.

Peterson said that MacDonald is a security officer with Gulf Coast Security, the firm which provides security services at Diamondhead, and was identified as a suspect in the burglary through an internal investigation by Earl "Buck" Ladner, owner of the firm.

The sheriff's department assisted Ladner in the investigation. The internal investigation was initiated when some of the other officers found a bottle of Tylenol with codeine under the seat of one of the security service's patrol cars, Peterson said, explaining that the bottle was identified as one which had been taken in the burglary.

About seven bottles of Emprin and other schedule III controlled substances, which are illegal to obtain or possess without a prescription, were also taken but have not been recovered, the sheriff added.

MacDonald was released on $3500 bond.

Peterson, who personally assisted in the investigation with Sheriff's Department Investigators Glen Strong and Nathan Hoda, said Ladner and Gulf Coast Security "was very cooperative in this matter."

WAVELAND FIREFIGHTER Bill Field tries to extinguish a Friday morning blaze at an unoccupied rental house at 836 Longo Street. The house, owned by Sandra Garber, was being remodeled. Waveland Fire Chief David Garcia said. However, there was no one working in the building at the time of the fire. According to Garcia, there was no one home in the neighborhood when the blaze started and it was not reported until smoke was visible to a motorist passing on Nicholson Avenue and a Waveland utilities crew working a block away, both of whom reported it. Flames were already showing through the roof and windows when two firetrucks with eight firefighters arrived. Garcia said it took about 30 minutes to control the fire. The cause of the fire is still under investigation but all indications are that it was accidental, Garcia stated. (Photo by John Wilkerson Jr.)

BAY FIRE—Bay St. Louis firefighters responded to a blaze at 705 Poyer Drive after receiving a call at 6:45 a.m. Sunday. Lizana Bay fire chief said a neighbor reported the fire after seeing flames from the back of the house. Capt. Mike Bay patrolman said in response to the call he called for flames leaping about 12 feet high from the house. Capt. Mike Wilkerson and Firefighter Pam Smith responded. They attacked the fire with a 1 1/2 inch hose and a 2 1/2 inch door using a new 1 1/2 inch hose. The fire was contained to the roof of the unoccupied home in the fifth hour. A water line was also broken by the fire. The fire was under control by 7:30 a.m. and the fire was extinguished. Responding included Lizana, Wilkerson, Bay, and Capt. Gary Maurice. Local women mistaken for documentary subject

An ETV Brief which appeared in last Sunday's The Sea Coast Echo reported that a Judy Woodruff 'Frontline' segment entitled 'To A Safer Place' would be aired on METV at 9 p.m. Tuesday, April 12 and that the principal character in the documentary would be Shirley Turcotte who allegedly was sexually abused as a youngster by her father.

The Shirley Turcotte in question—approximately 30 years of age and a native of Winnipeg, Canada—should not be confused with Mrs. Shirley Turcotte Piazza, 59, of Waveland, daughter of the late Walter Francis Turcotte Sr., nor with Mrs. Shirley Saucier Turcotte,

Teacher wins appeal in job dismissal case

BY DENA BISNETTE

A teacher fired by the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District last year has won a Hancock County Chancery Court appeal of her case. Juanita Mitchell, a 44-year veteran of the teaching profession who at that time was assigned as a third grade instructor at North Bay Elementary School, did not have her contract renewed for the 1987-88 school term by the school board last spring and chose to protest the matter in hearings on May 7, 1987, and May 18, 1987.

Mitchell was one of six teachers whose contracts were not renewed and three who fought the matter. Mitchell and former Bay band director Lana Kay Jones, who was later reinstated but chose not to return to employment with the school district, fought their nonrenewal cases in public hearings.

A third teacher, Bay Junior High School coach Gary Blaize, fought the matter in an executive session, was dismissed and later appealed his case through Hancock County Chancery Court. A hearing date on his appeal has not been set.

Mitchell was one of three black teachers dismissed.

Chancery Judge William L. Stewart, announcing his decision Thursday, agreed with her contention that the board unfairly used complaints from previous years in its decision not to reemploy her.

Her attorney, Jayne L. Buttross of Gulfport, pointed out in hearings before the school board last year that all the complaints with the exception of a tardiness problem had come from an old personnel file on her client that was not found until after the notice of nonrenewal had been issued.

Testimony at that time had shown that Mitchell had been given three reasons for dismissal, including alleged tardiness that repeatedly left her class unsupervised between the start of the school day and her arrival; alleged failure to use the district's instructional management plan in teaching reading; and alleged failure to complete assigned tasks.

Mitchell had testified that she had, with the exception of two occasions, never left the class unsupervised during regular classroom time but had only done so during a morning assembly in which other teachers are present; that she had never been furnished a copy of the instructional management plan or been notified that it was mandatory; and that she had used a textbook company's plan instead.

The teacher had asked for her personnel file to prepare for her appeal of the nonrenewal and about a week after picking it up was contacted by a district central office employee who told her a second file had been found.

Among the items found in Mitchell's second file were records from her teaching stint at Waveland Elementary School, where she was employed in 1984 when she filed an Equal Employment Opportunity Commission against the school district after Waveland Elementary School Principal James baldree had stopped her from assigning an English class an essay on a black American during black history week.

Baldree had contended that the topic constituted "teaching history in an English class" while Mitchell said the purpose of the assignment was to teach students to use resource materials other than textbooks in their writing.

Stewart stated before a Thursday hearing with Buttross and School Board Attorney Lucien Gex that he found the existence of two separate files on the same person raised "some serious questions" despite the fact that the school district had voluntarily supplied the second file to Mitchell.

The attorneys were instructed to determine how much back pay is owed to Mitchell and another hearing will be scheduled if the matter can not be resolved.

Alaska's lowest temperatures essential to job of Waveland soldier

FORT GREELY, Alaska—When the mercury takes an express train to the bottom of the thermometer in many locales, human activity normally slows like the proverbial molasses in January.

But when it's 20 below zero and the wind shrieks in like banshee from some frozen hell, Fort Greely gets "hot" with a flurry of movement.

For soldiers like Army Spec. 4 Maria A. Gerideau who call this gigantic icebox home, bitter cold signals them to work.

It's with the aid of Gerideau, 22, daughter of Essie M. Gerideau, 111 Baker St., Waveland, that America's military can fight and survive arctic and sub-arctic weather.

Gerideau is a member of the multifaceted team of the Army's Cold Regions Test Center.

"As a material handling specialist, I receive, inventory and issue all test items and supplies for the Cold Region Test Center and my unit," said Gerideau.

Cold—the mouth-cracking, oil-freezing, engine-seizing type of cold central Alaska offers—is why the Army Cold Regions Test Center is located at Fort Greely.

Sustained temperatures of 20 degrees below zero and lower make it the ideal location to test everything from pistol belts and main battle tanks to human endurance in one of the world's most hostile environments.

Equipment shortcomings in a cold environment are found before it enters the military's vast inventory.

At the test center, everyone has an important function, whether an "imported" tester from an Army post in the lower 48 states or a food service worker who keeps testers and evaluators fed.

Regardless of position, this particular location makes for some interesting—and often arduous—work.

"Here at the supply equipment management division, we are the arteries of the Cold Region Test Center," said Gerideau. "We keep the flow of test items needed for testing coming in. We also order, receive, and issue anything needed for the unit."

Located 107 miles south of Fairbanks, Alaska's second largest city, Fort Greely is an Army post that has the distinct of being a place soldiers either love or hate.

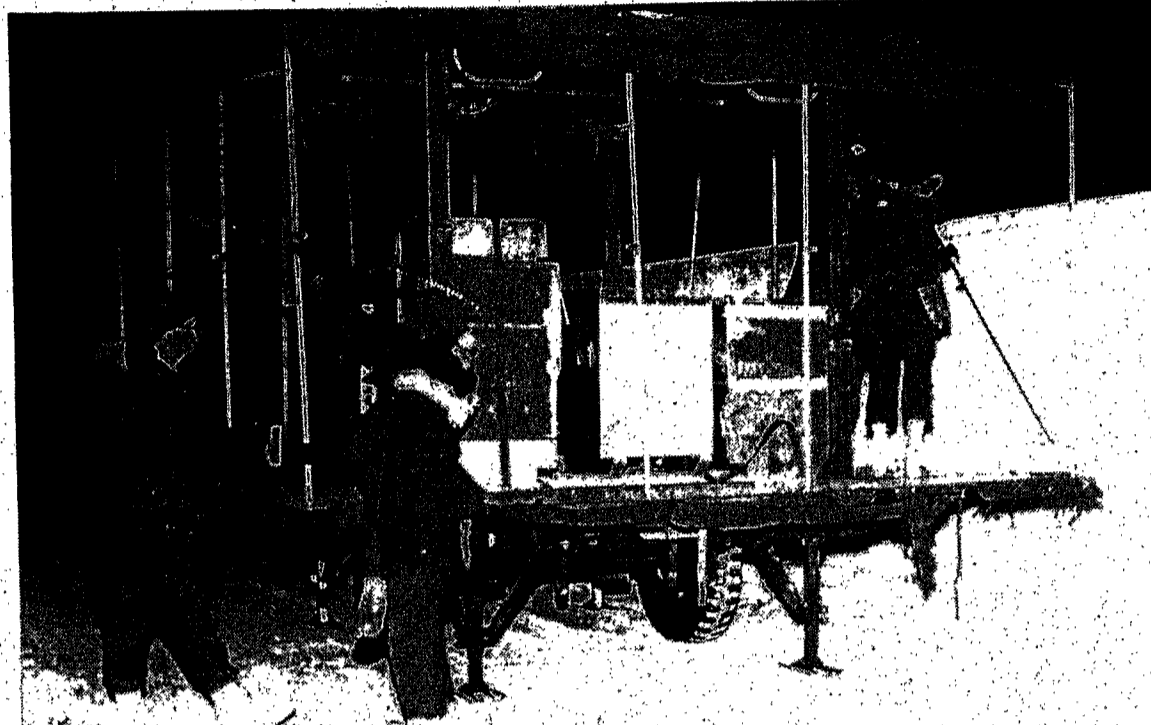

Being two hours away from the nearest fast food restaurant, mall or sports event can make life somewhat boring for soldiers used to more urban lifestyles. But for those who enjoy the outdoors, Alaska, chilly as it can be, is often compared to paradise.

"Being at Fort Greely is an experience I'll never forget," said Gerideau. "The country is wonderful and very cold. I love Alaska, but it's only been here for a year. I would like to see a market where you can find everything that you need in a place like this. Being at Fort Greely is an experience I'll never forget."

Gerideau is a member of the Senior High School in Bay St. Louis.

LOW TEMPERATURE TESTING—At the Army's Cold Regions Test Center, Fort Greely, Alaska, when the going gets cold, the cold gets going. Here, food service testers erect a portable field kitchen in the dead of night. The center operates 24 hours a day, and when temperatures plummet, testing begins. (U.S. Army

Dowdy urging fuel tax repeal

Congressman Wayne Dowdy said today that he will continue to press for the repeal of the IRS regulation requiring farmers and other purchasers of diesel fuel to pay a 15 cents-a-gallon tax and then apply for a refund.

"This regulation is extremely unfair to farmers, timber producers, and others who are already in a difficult cash-flow situation," Dowdy said. "No interest is paid by the government on this money taken from purchasers of diesel fuel. It forces small operations to hear a very great financial hardship."

The collection of the diesel fuel tax was recommended to Congress by the Reagan Administration as part of the effort to reduce the federal budget deficit.

Dowdy said that he has been working with the Chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, Representative Dan Rostenkowski, in an effort to repeal the diesel fuel tax. The Chairman indicated to Congressman Dowdy in a letter this week that action will be taken by the Committee to address the problem.

We are in the process of learning how to use new computer equipment at The Sea Coast Echo for all of our typesetting.

It has been more than five years since we changed typesetting equipment at the Echo and it is going to take us a few days to get acquainted with our latest system.

We have installed a Mycro-Tech 3000 system with two Apple Laser Writers and a Macintosh SE.

Over the years at the Echo, I have been involved with many equipment changes and this one has to be the most exciting.

One of the things we are doing is learning a complete new language, as this is necessary to issue the commands to the computers.

There are so many new things we will be able to do in typesetting with our Mycro-Tek equipment. By the way, many daily newspapers across the country use Mycro-Tek systems.

It will be a few weeks before we will have all of our type produced by the new system in use, as we have some news copy already set on our old equipment to use.

In this issue of the Echo we have a mixture of copy from both of our systems.

We all know we will be a little slow in the next few weeks and hope you will bear with us.

This column has been set on our new equipment.

Lin Rutherford dropped by on Friday to tell us about the very successful blood drawing held Wednesday at the American Legion home in Waveland.

Rutherford reported a total of 83 units of blood were collected and this is a record for a Waveland drawing. I know that Lin and Big John Rutherford, as well as many others, worked very hard to make the drawing a success.

Of course, the drawing would not have been successful without the participation of the many donors and volunteer workers, who should also receive a big thank you.

We also know there were many business owners who encouraged their employees to be donors at the American Red Cross Hancock County Blood Drawing.

Andy Giaconi and Audry Boyd were the co-chairmen for Post 77.

Again, thanks to everyone for being good neighbors.

On Monday night, Bay High School and the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a career fair for students.

The career fair is also receiving assistance from the Auxiliary members of the Bay St. Louis and Waveland American Legions.

This should be a good opportunity for students to talk person-to-person to business and professionals from career fields they may be interested in following.

Invitations have been sent to all of the high schools in Hancock County and it is hoped there will be many of our leaders of tomorrow in attendance.

Students attending the career fair should be at Bay High at 7 p.m. and participants should arrive at 6:30 p.m.

We hope to see you at the career fair on Monday night.

ETV's 'Roads' to visit NSTL

"Mississippi Roads" takes flight with segments that highlight a balloon race in Canton, a visit to the National Space Technology Laboratories in Hancock County and the spiritual rebirth of an inmate in the Rankin County Correctional Facility Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. on Mississippi ETV.

The first destination of the evening is Canton's Fourth of July celebration and the 1987 Mississippi Championship Hot Air Balloon Race. Balloonist Don Stanford of Oxford demonstrates flight instruments and explains sponsorship of balloons. Ballonist/Instructor Larry Torgerson of Meridian explains ballooning requirements, costs, licensing and training.

"Roads" then takes viewers up in Torgerson's balloon for the Hare & Hound race. Torgerson's balloon is the "hare," and he sets a target for the other balloons, the "hounds," to strike with dropped bean bags.

Next, "Roads" wings its way to the National Space Technology Laboratories in Hancock County to look in on the many diverse activities in progress there. Charles Whitehurst, director of the Earth Resources Laboratory, explains a high-altitude method of evaluating ground conditions for use by the agriculture industry. Jerry McCall, director of the National Bouy Data Center, tells about the development and use of weather buoys that measure temperature, wind direction and velocity and waves.

Mervin Carpenter, project manager, Shuttle Support Operations, tells viewers about tests on space shuttle booster engines, engine requirements and capabilities, and Lee English, test supervisor, describes how engine tests are observed and controlled. Finally, "Mississippi Roads" arrives at the Rankin County Correctional Facility for a visit with Sheldon Gooch, a convicted armed robber serving a life-plus-sixty year term. After undergoing a conversion to Christianity, Gooch became a counselor to other prisoners and an assistant to Chaplain Wendy Hatcher and recorded a gospel album titled "I'm Free." In concert at Watkins High School in Laurel, Gooch sings "New Man" and "I'm Free," which incorporates his testimony to Mississippi youth.

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

JACKSON—It was just like old times last week in the Mississippi House.

Forget about Operation Pretense of the winds of change that whistled through the county courthouses in last year's elections.

The county supervisors were once again packed in the gallery breathing down the necks of lawmakers.

On the floor, the House wrestled once more with the perennial issue of requiring county boards of supervisors to give up the "beat" system of operating and go to the county "unit" system.

When the matter at hand was decided, the House performed just as the supervisors wanted. There would be no mandate. Only county option.

Make the voters in each county tell the supervisors if they want the money and resources of the county to be used on a countywide basis rather than dividing them up into five little fiefdoms.

By historic standards, it was a classic case of passing the buck, both by the legislature, and by the county supervisors, back to the people to say if they want county government operated in a more business-like way.

If the question of the county unit system—the pooling of county funds, personnel, equipment and other resources on a countywide basis—were a new one there would be some justification for going to the people for direction.

But the benefits of county unit operation as opposed to beat operation are well known from experience and documentation. For instance, Coahoma County has been under a county unit road system for 40 years and has long been recognized as one of the best-run counties in the state.

Last year, a study of the three-year-old county unit operation in rural Neshoba County by the political science department at Mississippi State University showed the cost of the county road program had been reduced 38 percent per month, along with many other savings.

Going back to the definitive Brookings Institution report of 1932 on reorganization of state and county government in Mississippi, the county unit system has been brought forth as a viable alternative to the old beat system of county operations.

This writer recalls that when the State Aid road program was enacted back in 1949, the bill as originally brought out on the floor required counties to have a county unit road program in order to qualify for State Aid funds.

But that provision was promptly cut out of the State Aid road bill by amendment once it hit the House floor.

The FBI's sting Operation Pretense has exposed to public view as never before widespread graft under Mississippi's loosely-run county supervisor system. Thus far, 52 supervisors and a half dozen road supply vendors have been charged or convicted in the Pretense crackdown, and there's more to come.

Gov. Ray Mabus' election last year was largely attributable to his identity with fighting corruption in county government, resulting from his efforts as state auditor to put a stop to long-standing misuse of taxpayers' funds by supervisors.

When Mabus made enactment of a strong, mandatory county unit bill one of his top legislative priorities, many felt at long last the Legislature would be moved to finally install the unit system in every county.

But first the Senate passed a watered-down mandatory unit system version which let supervisors keep road maintenance under the beat system, and gave them the option of retaining control over county personnel.

The House County Affairs and Ways and Means committees had rewritten the Senate bill and made it into a stricter measure. It had the effect of taking the supervisors out of the business of managing road and bridge operations, and putting them under a county road manager.

Under the bill, each county would have to hire an administrator, but several smaller counties could share the same administrator.

It became apparent from the start of last week's floor debate on the stronger house version that the measure was in trouble and that the showdown would be over injecting the referendum provision, which Mabus opposes.

With the supervisors in the gallery smiling broadly, the House by a 68-54 vote required a Nov. 8 referendum in order to adopt a countywide road administration. At least, the finally approved version would mandate central purchasing and inventory control.

It seemed almost certain that whatever form of a county unit system bill may emerge from a House-Senate conference committee, it will have flaws that Mabus will be hard-pressed to accept.

Common Cause praises house for strong Bill

A citizens' watchdog organization has congratulated the House of Representatives for passing a strong county unit bill last week. The measure passed by a vote of 110 to 12 Wednesday after a five-hour debate during which an amendment was tacked on to require a county-by-county referendum.

Common Cause/Mississippi called the local-option amendment "unnecessary," but praised the House's definition of county unit. Roberta Madden, field director of the organization, said the house version is superior to the Senate-passed version in that it requires a county unit system for road maintenance as well as construction.

The Senate version continues the outdated beat system for maintenance, she said, and also makes optional the establishment of countywide personnel systems.

Madden said the Senate's bill was "rushed through without adequate time for senators or the public to examine it."

If the final version contains the weak Senate definition of a county unit system, she added, Common Cause will urge the governor to veto the bill.

The people of Mississippi want true reform in county government. They have had enough of the waste and corruption engendered by the outdated beat system and won't be satisfied with a setup that allows business as usual under the guise of reform," Madden said.

She predicted that if a strong county unit definition becomes law, counties will realize substantial savings as have been reported in the 22 counties which have adopted county unit.

The bill is expected to go to a conference committee to iron out differences in the house and Senate versions.

Governor's Weekly Column

Gov. Ray Mabus

One question has been asked of me many times since I have become governor and fought for a substantial teacher pay increase.

That question is, "What makes you think paying teachers more will result in a better public education system?"

I think the answer lies in the word, competitiveness.

Unless the salaries we pay teachers approximates the responsibilities we demand of them, we will lose too many of our best teachers to better paying professions or to other states. And, sadly, too often we will not be able to attract our brightest students into teaching.

For those reasons, I proposed early this year that teachers be given an average increase of $3,700 for the school year beginning Sept. 1.

Both the Mississippi House and the State Senate have voted to do this, although there are differences in what each chamber has passed.

I am hopeful that a compromise can be worked out to give teachers this raise as soon as possible.

My position that better teacher pay is necessary to attract and retain excellent teachers was supported by a recent story in The Jackson Daily News.

University of Mississippi Chancellor Gerald Turner said there is "no question" that more university students will go into teaching if teacher pay is improved.

And Cozetta W. Buckley, associate dean of education at Jackson State University, acknowledged that "quite a few (students) go out of state because the pay is much better."

It has been estimated that two out of three teachers trained in Mississippi universities leave for other states or professions.

Also, it is clear that we are not drawing students into the profession like we once did.

State College Board figures show that nearly two times as many students (2,060) earned bachelor's degrees in education from Mississippi universities during the 1977-1978 school year compared to the 1966-67 school year (1,152).

Southern states were warned of an impending teacher shortage more than two years ago by the Southern Growth Policies Board.

The board reported that "by the 1990s, teacher shortages could have a severe chilling effect on education reforms initiated by the southern states, seriously impeding their efforts to improve the economic health of the region and its people."

I have said many times that greater investment in education does not ensure success, but a failure to invest assures failure. It is my firm belief that better teacher pay, and the improvements in education that will result, are one of the best legacies we can leave our children.

Leash law improvement seen as step forward

A standing and resounding applause for Councilwoman Lisa Coward who is largely responsible for the adoption of City Ordinance No. 317 allowing stiffer fines for owners of dogs that are not properly restrained and allowed to run free.

The dog warden is also cooperating. Result: bike riders are not required to fend off aggressive dogs, fewer garbage pails are overturned. Strollers may walk in peace.

But while correcting "evils" why not pass and enforce an ordinance forbidding the burning of leaves or trash within the city limits?

The smoke pollutes the air, there is very real danger of fires, and many people are allergic to smoke.

With our excellent garbage and trash pick-ups who needs to burn leaves and garbage within the city limits?

Determining your net worth

The beginning of a new year is a good time to take stock of your family's current financial position or net worth. Net worth tells how much a family is worth in dollars and cents. Net worth equals total assets remaining after all current liabilities are subtracted. In other words, net worth is what you own minus what you owe.

Preparing a net worth statement has advantages. Chances are, preparing a net worth statement will lead to a pleasant surprise. The financial picture may be better than you thought, as most families have a larger net worth than they realize.

In addition, by comparing net worth statements with past years, you will gain a picture of your progress from one year to the next in meeting your family's goals.

To prepare a net worth statement, begin by pulling together all important financial records, such as current and past income and gift tax returns and all insurance policies.

Locate information regarding company benefit plans; the current status of accounts you have such as pensions, annuities, profit-sharing plans or stock options; and current balances in savings and checking accounts. Also, compile records of balances on debts you owe, such as charge cards, store accounts and installment debt.

Once these documents are located, you can begin the net worth statement. First, list all your liquid assets—those which can be converted to cash easily.

Among your liquid assets are cash, checking accounts, savings accounts and any accumulated cash value of whole life or permanent life insurance policies.

Next list your marketable investments valued at current market value. Current market value is the amount you could obtain if you sold them today. These investments include stocks, bonds, mutual funds, collection and other marketable investments.

If you have non-marketable investments in the form of tax shelters, accrued equity in your company pension plan that is not forfeited if you leave the company, stock options, notes receivable or interests, list these next. Finally, come to your net worth by adding and subtracting your personal assets, real estate holdings, all household goods and collections, clothing, jewelry and vehicles. By totaling the two sides, you can see the net worth of your family.

For retirement years

Advance planning aids decision about housing

By Linda S. Moore
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

Selecting the right housing is just as important for older couples as the decision is for young couples selecting their first family home. "Any housing decision after age 45 should be made with consideration for the needs of the later years," said Dr. Frances Graham, housing specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service. "Convenience, safety and comfort are important, especially as you grow older," Graham said. She said as a person grows older minor annoyances with a house, such as stairs, unused rooms to heat and cool or maintenance troubles, may become major problems. When people nearing retirement age are considering relocation, Graham recommends they make a list of reasons for and against moving.

"Emotions and personal attachments will play important roles in their final decision," she said. "They may wish to stay in their present home for a few more years. Although research suggests that the earlier the housing decision is made, the easier it is to live with the choice."

Several options in addition to the traditional self-owned residences are available for those considering retirement homes. Condominiums and mobile homes are popular for those who want to continue owning their residence.

"Renting offers the most freedom from unexpected expenses and obligations," Graham said. "You have the freedom to move about or you can travel with the knowledge that someone else will take care of the property."

The housing expert said retirement villages or communities are also gaining in popularity.

"The advantage is that the residents are assured of a community life among others of similar age and presumably of compatible tastes," Graham said. "The major disadvantage may be the cost of the initial entrance fee and the monthly fee thereafter."

"Feeling safe and secure at home is influenced by a feeling of control of the living environment. The knowledge that there are neighbors to call, if needed, is comforting," Graham said. "Likewise, privacy is most satisfying when there is regular social contact with other people."

more on other retirement villages and communities, which would probably be most appropriate.

Dropout policy development funded

The State Department of Education has been selected to receive a $40,000 grant to develop policies to assist potential dropouts. Mississippi is one of 11 states chosen nationally for the competitive grants by the Council of Chief State School Officers in Washington, D.C. The state will match the grant funding with $20,850.

Under the proposal, the SDE will develop community support for new policy and statutory initiatives to meet the needs of at-risk youth throughout the state and will coordinate all dropout activities in the state. Current plans call for three regional meetings and a statewide meeting to form partnerships to tackle the problem.

Coalitions between state government, local government, business, labor, religious organizations, schools and the news media will be formed. These groups will then develop plans for legislation to help reduce the dropout problem.

Mississippi currently has the nation's fifth highest dropout rate, ahead of Louisiana, the District of Columbia, California, and Florida.

Although the details of the state's effort must still be finalized, plans are to have proposed legislation ready for the 1989 session of the legislature.

Birding Hike slated

Ornithologist and columnist Judy Toups will lead a special Bayou Birding Hike in the Davis Bayou area of Gulf Islands National Seashore in Ocean Springs on Sunday, Apr. 17 at 2 p.m.

Following the 90 minute hike Eastern National Parks and Monument Association will host an autograph party for Ms. Toups who recently co-authored 'Birds and Birding on the Mississippi Gulf Coast' with Jerome Jackson, Mississippi State University biology professor.

Visitors attending the hike are reminded to bring binoculars and to wear appropriate clothing to protect themselves against insects and exposure to the sun. Program begins at the William M. Colmer Visitor Center.

All activities are free and open to the public. For more information on this and other interpretive activities available through the Davis Bayou area of Gulf Islands National Seashore, phone (601) 875-0821

Hancock Women's Club

The Hancock Women's Club met at the Waveland Library on April 14 with 22 members and guest Maggie Peckham present. Lois Cripple, president, was the presiding officer.

The membership approved a donation of $200 to the Hancock County Humane Society, specifically earmarked for the spay-neuter program.

Fun and Games Day will be at 11 a.m., Wednesday, April 27 at the home of Ruth Gallagher, 332 Terrace Street, Waveland.

Each participant in this month's games will bring one or more wrapped "white elephants," which will serve as prizes.

Bag lunches will be available for purchase. Guests of members will be welcome.

Alice Winchester was the winner of this month's door prize.

After a short recess for refreshments, the group heard Leroy Modenbach Jr., executive director of Goodwill, speak on the operation of that organization and the need for the public's support to help them accomplish their objective of making retarded and otherwise handicapped persons into self-supporting citizens.

His remarks made all of us aware of the need to donate usable articles to the organization so they can be repaired or refurbished and sold in Goodwill sales outlets, one of which is located in Bay St. Louis.

Next month's meeting will be held at 11 a.m. on Thursday, May 12 at the Cajun Cuisine Restaurant on US-90 in Waveland.

Pass Christian Garden Club

The regular monthly meeting of the Pass Christian Garden Club was held on Thursday, Apr. 7 at the Hancock Bank Civic Center.

Mrs. Anthony Heibel, Flower Show Chairman and member of the garden club was the guest speaker. She spoke on the upcoming annual flower show, to be held on Apr. 21 at a member's home.

Theme of the show is "A Southern Tradition".

All members were encouraged to enter in one of the design divisions and horticulture division. A special meeting for all flower show committees, will be held at Mrs. Heibel's home on Apr. 11 at 11:00 a.m.

The meeting concluded with refreshments served by Hostesses, Mrs. Daniel Sentilles and Mrs. Harvey Blankenship and their Co-Hostesses.

The installation luncheon will be held on May 5 at Parent's Restaurant in Discovery Bay at 11 a.m.

Wild Flower Tip: Marigolds and other warm weather annuals can be transplanted into the garden when danger of frost has passed.

Friendship Oak Chapter NSDAR

The monthly meeting of the Friendship Oak Chapter, National Society Daughters of the American Revolution, was held Wednesday, Apr. 13 at the Ramada Inn in Long Beach with 17 as members and one guest present. Hostesses for the luncheon were Mrs. George Cassis and Mrs. William J. Gammel.

Mrs. Cassis provided several lovely bouquets of azaleas and daisies from her garden to decorate the tables.

Following luncheon, the meeting was brought to order by Mrs. James R. Thomas, Regent. The Pledge of Allegiance and the American's Creed were recited. Mrs. Michael Carron and Mrs. Louis P. Cyr were approved for membership in the chapter and welcomed by the group.

Mrs. Cassis, National Defense Chairman, read a short article on the destructiveness of drug abuse. Recording Secretary Mrs. Hazel Erhard read the minutes of the previous meeting and Mrs. Gammel gave the Treasurer's report.

The program was presented by Mrs. Philip R. Davenport, chapter Registrar. Her subject was "Finding Your Relatives" and through narrative and slides Mrs. Davenport gave many suggestions for DAR members' use in tracing lines of family descent.

Her advice was to start with one's self and work back using family photos, diaries, letters, Court House records, official records, cemetery records, tombstone inscriptions and church records. Other sources of information are the National Census Reports and military records and applications for military pensions. Mrs. Davenport has several very helpful books and references and is willing to share with DAR members wanting to learn more about genealogical search methods.

In appreciation of her many contributions of time and talent to the DAR, as well as her educational presentation, Mrs. Thomas announced that it has been arranged that Mrs. Davenport will receive the flag which flew over the White House on the day of her talk, Apr. 13, 1988.

The next meeting of Friendship Oak Chapter will be held Saturday, May 14, at 11:30 a.m. at the Long Beach Ramada Inn. Mrs. James Young will speak on "Indians of the South."

American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139

The regular monthly meeting of the Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Auxiliary, Unit 139, was held on Monday, Apr. 11, at the Legion home.

Mrs. Mattie North, President, opened the meeting and the color bearers, Mmes. Lena Cuevas and Christie LaFontaine, advanced the colors. The Chaplain, Mrs. Roslyn Weathers, read the prayers and then the membership led by Mrs. North recited the Pledge of Allegiance followed by the Preamble.

Mrs. Beatrice Ladner, in lieu of Mrs. Danita Scianna, read the roll call of officers; then read the minutes of the previous meeting. Mrs. Anna Brehm, Treasurer, gave her report on the finances of the Unit.

Mrs. North then called on the various committees for their reports: Mrs. Hazel Wohlschlegel, VACS chairlady, asked for help at the picnic on the Farm on Wednesday, Apr. 20. She also asked the members to keep on collecting clothing for the veterans and to either call her or bring the clothes to the Legion home.

Mrs. Lucille Bourdeaux, Legislative Chairlady, spoke on the recognition of the Merchant Marine personnel who served during the war, 1941-1945 as veterans; and as such, are now eligible for veterans' rights.

Mrs. Christie, Poppy Chairlady, gave her report on the Poppy drive and the success despite the postponement and inclement weather. She also thanked the members who helped to make the Junior Auxiliary spaghetti dinner a success.

Mrs. Margie Schultz, Nominating Committee Chairlady, said that she is progressing very well and hopes to have a number of officers for the next meeting.

Mrs. Roslyn Weathers, Community Service Chairlady, asked the members to give her an accounting of their volunteer hours so that she can give them in her report. She also spoke of the two monthly activities she and Mrs. Oris Planchard do at the Hotel Reed Nursing and Retirement home—namely the "sing-alongs" and the birthday parties for the residents who celebrate their birthdays during the month.

Mrs. Lena Cuevas spoke of her semi-annual Bingo-lunch which will take place on May 12—and hopes that the ladies will be there to help with the veterans.

Mrs. Lou Wilkerson, Education Chairlady, spoke on Career night on Apr. 18, to be held in the Gym of Bay High School. It would be very advantageous for the young people to look in on this opportunity as there will be refreshments served, as well as compensations.

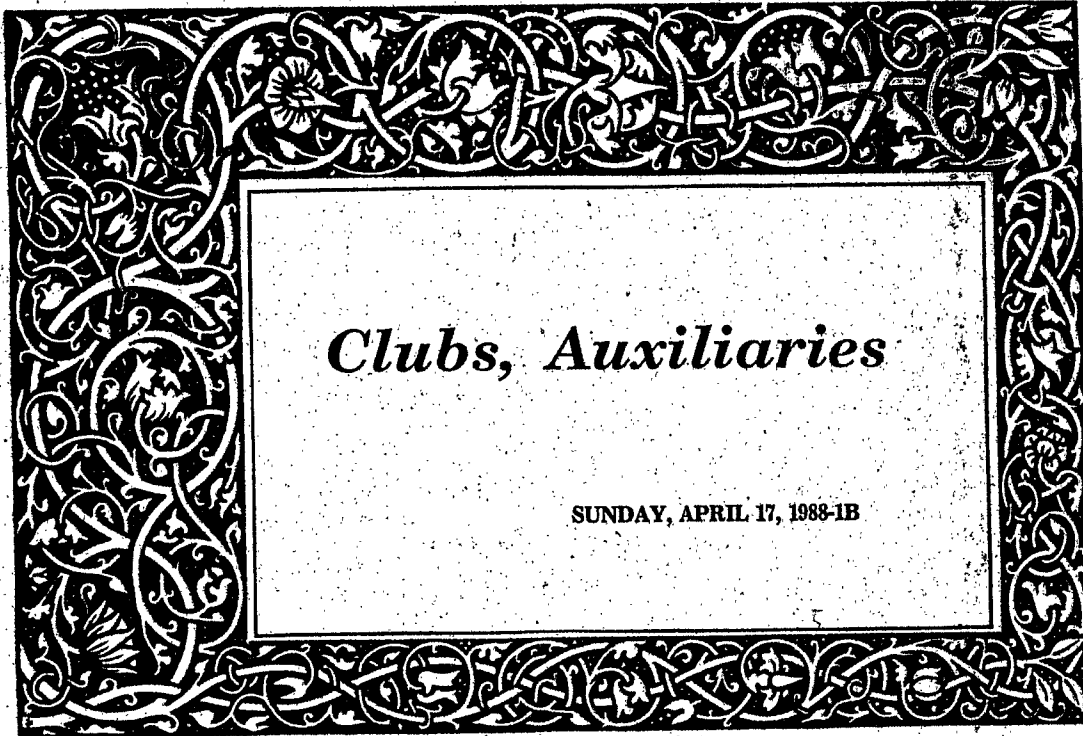

The Spring Fling is only a week away but tickets can still be purchased at the door, or from any of the members.

Mmes. Phyllis Moran and Hazel Wohlschlegel volunteered to sit at the Veterans hospital and hand out pamphlets and explain the Cancer program wherever needed.

Mrs. Mattie North and Roslyn Weathers led the membership in prayers and the draping of the charted, in memory of Mrs. Mildred John, who was a long-time member of Unit 139.

Mrs. Rose Ann Thomas, Music Chairlady, led the membership in the singing of the Star Spangled Banner, the closing prayers were said, and then the meeting was adjourned.

To our ailing and recuperating members, we send them best wishes for a speedy recovery and to our bereaved members, our heart-felt sympathy.

Pregnancy, childbirth classes scheduled

Free pregnancy and childbirth classes will begin Monday from 7 to 8:30 p.m. and will continue on Mondays for four weeks.

These classes are taught by four working registered nurses with several years of experience in labor, delivery and neo-natal intensive care.

Women are encouraged to attend as early in their pregnancy as possible, but may join at any stage. Although these classes are intended primarily for the singlemother, married couples are also welcome.

"There is no fee, and we encourage any pregnant woman to join us for a program of education, self-awareness and support. We would appreciate a pre-registration phone call from those who are interested for planning purposes," said Beth Riley director of Morning Star Pregnancy Care Center, 2204 24th Ave., Gulfport.
